PATIENT INFORMED CONSENT

Medical Cannabis, or Marijuana, is legal in California for use by patients with “serious disease”(see State Code 11362.7 at HYPERLINK "<http://www.leginfo.ca.gov>" www.leginfo.ca.gov), but is illegal to use, possess or distribute under federal law.

1. California law defines "Serious medical condition" as any persistent medical symptom that:

(A) Substantially limits the ability of the person to conduct one or more major life activities as defined in the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-336) AND/OR

(B) If not alleviated, may cause serious harm to the patient's safety or physical or mental health.

2. The law prohibits cannabis consumption in certain situations:

(a) Non-smoking areas (b) In or within 1,000 feet of the grounds of a school, recreation center, or youth center, unless the medical use occurs within a residence, (c) On a school bus, (d) While in a motor vehicle that is being operated, (e) While operating a boat.

3. Penalties of from 6-12 months in jail and up to $1000 fine for materially misrepresenting a medical condition to a physician, or employing fraud to obtain a medical certificate/ID card.

- Cannabis can be intoxicating, impair behavior, and aggravate those effects from other drugs, including alcohol and opiates, such as codeine.
- Cannabis may cause unknown and undesirable interactions with other medications.
- Cannabis use can be associated with acutely unpleasant effects, such as disorientation, antisocial feelings, anxiety, sleep disturbances, or paranoia.
- Frequent use may result in social dysfunction, memory and sleep disturbances, and fatigue.
- Smoking may cause bronchitis or cancer.
- As with any medication, Cannabis should be avoided during pregnancy and breastfeeding.
- Men and women should be aware that any medication can affect fertility, and the incidence of ectopic pregnancy, birth defects and developmental disorders.
- The benefits, effects, risks and side effects of Cannabis are largely unknown or unproven.
- This approval is contingent upon my agreement to avoid any use which could reasonably pose a danger to myself or others, including, but not limited to, use of Cannabis while operating a vehicle or machinery, or engaging in inherently dangerous activities.
- I assume full responsibility for my use of medical Cannabis, and release Dr. Dickinson and her agents/contractors from any liability and for any consequences of my voluntary medical cannabis use.

•Dr. Dickinson DOES NOT PROVIDE ANY PRIMARY CARE SERVICES.

I, _____, have read and understand the above, and agree to the constraints imposed therein. This certificate establishes that the consulting physician has approved of my use of medical Cannabis as a reasonable and possibly preferable alternative in combination with, or instead of, other legal options. I understand that this approval is provided conditional upon my compliance with all applicable laws. I agree to refrain from illegal drug use or diversion.

I hereby authorize Dr. Dickinson to verbally verify the authenticity of this medical Cannabis approval upon request from law enforcement, public health officials, and Cannabis Clubs.

VAPORIZING, AND OTHER WAYS TO AVOID SMOKE

Smoke, even if cooled, is irritating to the mouth and air passages. Cannabis smoke contains carcinogens (cancer-causing agents).

Fortunately, there is an alternative to smoking cannabis called vaporizing that avoids nearly all carcinogens but offers the rapid relief previously found only by smoking. Cannabis releases medicinal vapors above 140 C (284 F) but doesn't release benzene and other carcinogens until it reaches 200 C (392 F), and will not combust (burn or release smoke) until it reaches 230 C (446 F).

This means if a device gently cooks cannabis at 140 to 190 C (284 to 374 F), one can inhale the herbal medicine in the smokeless vapor without inhaling the carcinogens found in smoke.

However, some persons do not tolerate inhaling any medicine.

One way to minimize the risk of irritation to the airways is to ingest cannabis by mouth. Cannabis must be heated to be activated, and can be cooked into foods. Cannabis tinctures, both alcohol and non-alcohol based, act more quickly than ingested Cannabis. Ingested and tinctured Cannabis require an hour or so to take effect, but the effects can last 4-8 hours, or more.

The long duration of action of ingested or tinctured Cannabis is useful for people treating predictable symptoms. Some people are intolerant of the more psycho-active effects from ingested and tinctured Cannabis. This effect is related to the body's transformation of a component of Cannabis into a different active compound.

Newer routes of medical Cannabis are in development, and include transdermal devices (skin patches), and inhalers. Topical application of Cannabis poultices (moist mixtures of Cannabis, using oils, and heated, as above) provide relief to localized areas of pain, such as neck, low back, or arthritic joints).
